Almost unbelievably, Newsweek, which just a few years ago was calling for the unvaccinated to be jailed, is calling out the FDA for approving these new so-called "vaccines" without any clinical trials on humans.

According to that report, the new "booster" shots (or whatever you want to call them) were only tested on mice, and on a mere eight of them. If that is not piss-poor "science," then we surely do not know what is.

"These updated boosters will be the first released to the public without any humans involved in the clinical trials, raising questions from some about the efficacy," Newsweek's Nick Mordowanec writes.

CDC's Mandy Cohen claims only way to stop COVID is to develop jab after jab after jab after jab

It was actually the FDA itself that back in June begged Pfizer and Moderna to develop the new jabs. The agency claimed at the time that a new fall season "variant" of COVID would arise that would not be covered by the earlier jabs, meaning a new jab had to be developed to "fight" it.

"We have more tools than ever to prevent the worst outcomes from COVID-19," said Mandy Cohen, director of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), about the new jabs that the FDA requested, and that are now here.

"Some viruses, however, change over time. This coronavirus is one of them."

According to FDA Commissioner Dr. Robert Califf in an August 25 X (formerly Twitter) post, the agency skipped right over human clinical trials for the newest approved jabs and instead relied on clinical trial data from other bivalent mRNA COVID boosters that were released in the past.

"Bivalent and multivalent vaccines are very common and modifying a vaccine to include different virus strains often does not require a change in other ingredients," Califf wrote. "FDA has extensive experience with reviewing strain changes in vaccines, as is done with the annual flu vaccine."

Time will tell if anyone actually takes these things. We know that a few hospital systems here and there are trying to mandate them, which is probably the only way the establishment will "convince" anyone to get jabbed with these obviously deadly poisons at this point.

As long as America continues to allow it, the FDA will continue to approve and emergency use authorize (EUA) jab after jab after jab until ever last person in the U.S. is gravely sick or dead. Learn more at Genocide.news.

Covid directly allowed the government to legitimize 'Human Experimentation', until the people understand that and we take the government back, the medical system is now totally corrupted. (destroying trust in the medical system is part of the great reset plan). They succeeded on that
